THE MOORES PLEAD NOT GUILTY.

ASSISTANT DISTRICT ATTORNEY O'REILLY SAYS THEY HAVE BEEN OPERATING IN

William A. E. Moore and his wife, Favne, against assault, pleaded not guilty in Part I of the Court The pair are accused of extorting from Martin Mahon, proprietor of the New-Amsterdam Hotel, $167 in cash and a note for $5,000, and Moore is accused of assaulting Detective Cuff. of the District-Attorney's office, with a revolver.

Assistant District-Attorney O'Reilly said that ball Assistant District-Attorney O'Relly said that hall should be at least $1.500 in each case, as the District-Attorney had received information that the defendants had been operating in other cities, and he thought it probable that if bail were fixed at a low-figure the defendants would not appear for trial. Counsel for the Moores said that this was preposterous. His clients would certainly appear for trial, as they had a good defence.

Judge Cowing made the bail $4,000 on each of the indictments. The Moores were taken back to the Tomba.

"STEERING" FOR COURT LAWYERS.

JUDGE COWING'S INDIGNATION AROUSED BY A PRACTICE IN GENERAL SESSIONS.

Sessions, yesterday expressed great indignation at the revelation made to him by Joseph J. Harris, a lawyer of No. 246 Broadway, that lawyers prac-tising in that court employed "steerers." The case of Jacob Richmond, of No. 62 Carmine-st., was on amined as to his sanity. The commitment was the calendar, charged with attempted robbery, signed by Magistrate Simms in the Harlem Police When the case was called Judge Cowing asked Court, despite a vehement statement from Poor Richmond if he had a lawyer. Richmond replied that he had been examined by two reputable that he had a lawyer named Harris, to whom he physicians and pronounced sane. His wife testithat he had a lawyer named Harris, to whom he had paid $40 to defend him, hat the man was not present. Judge Cowing sent for Harris. When he appeared in court he told Judge Cowing that when he was retained in the case he was in the Catskills. His clerk received the $40 but had to pay $10 for half and $15 for the services of a steerer," who took the case to his office. Judge Cowing said it was an outrage that such a condition of things prevailed.

Richmond was tried and acquired. He was charged by Detective Sullivan with attempting to stend a woman's purse. The woman did not appear.

POLICEMAN HELD FOR FELONY.

CHARGED WITH LURING AN IMMIGRANT TO A SALOON, WHERE HE WAS DRUGGED

Policeman Henry Kreckel, of the Charles-st, sta-tion, who was accused in the Jefferson Market Police Court on Thursday by James Alexander, an immigrant, of luring him to a saloon where he was drugged and robbed, was suspended by Chief Devery yesterday afternoon, pending an investigation into the case to be made by Inspector Thompson. into the case to be made by Inspector Thompson. Alexander arrived in this country on Wednesday on the steamer Majestic. He came from Scotland, and was on his way to Teeswater, Ontario, to settle up his father's estate. On the night of his arrival in New York he started out to see the town. The immigrant says he met Kreckel, and they went to a saloon at No. 257 Bleecker-st. There he was drugged, and while unconscious robbed. He identified Kreckel later as the policeman who had lured him to the saloon, and Richard Gandy as the bartender. The latter was arragned in the Jefferson Market Police Court and was held in $1.000 for examination by Magistrate Pool.

The examination in the case took place yesterday before Magistrate Pool in the Jefferson Market Court. Kreckel was a defendant prisoner with Gandy. Alexander repeated his former story, and cross-examination by the defendants' lawyer failed to make him alter any of his statements. He said he told Kreckel that police officers in Scotland did not go into bars, but the policeman replied that it was different here.

In the course of the examination there was a stormy scene between the Magistrate and the lawyer who represented the defendants, Magistrate Pool asserting that the lawyer was asking the same questions over and over again, and that he would not stand it. The storm ended in the Magistrate having the lawyer put out of the room. He held Kreckel in $5.000 bail and Gandy in $2.000 bail for trial, and promised that the papers in the case would go to the Grand Jury this morning.

Kreckel then appealed to Captain Moynihan to answer, and Magistrate Pool said he did not think it would be proper for the captain not be responsible for Kreckel under the circumstances. Alexander arrived in this country on Wednesday
